THE NEW PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, August 3rd.

The Queen's speech will be read on the 8th instant, after which the opposition will move a direct vote of want of confidence.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

INTERESTING items on "the Transpacific trade" and other subjects are crowded out of this issue.

THE next Gymkhana will take place on the 27th inst. Programme in our advertising columns. These monthly meetings are growing in popularity.

THE Free Press says that Mr. T. C. Loveridge is prospecting, by permission of the Governor, for mother of pearl shells off Tanah Merah, Singapore.

THE first crop rice harvest is now over, says the Foochow Echo, the yield satisfactory and quality fair. The farmers are now crying for rain for their second crop.

"Pa," said a five-year-old son, "can a rope walk?"

"Well, my son," answered the father; "it might if it were taut."

THE report and balance sheet of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank was published this afternoon, but reached us too late for publication. We intend to reproduce it to-morrow—with comments.

A NICE question in law has come up in Philadelphia, where a lady left one thousand dollars in her will for the care and maintenance of her pet cat. The cat recently died, but left five little orphan kittens, and now the question is whether they are the legal heirs of the pet cat.

AN Amoy correspondent, writing us on the tea trade, says "Business is very lively. The tea season is far away ahead of last year, and there is no sign of slackening. It keeps all the boys on the jump, and knocks all social matters into chaos. We are all well and have nothing to report."

IT is expected that Mr. Bibby will shortly come from Raub to Singapore to confer with the local directors. What does this mean? Certainly there is no need to consult about the disposal of the gold from the mine. Is more capital to be raised? Or is there another reconstruction in the wind?

A PILLAR Letter Box has now been placed near the Kowloon Wharves, and will be cleared at noon and 4 p.m. Articles of value should not be posted in this Box but should be registered at the General Post Office. Similar boxes are being erected at various parts of the town and at the Peak. Due notice will be given when they are ready.

THE Band of the 1st Shropshire Light Infantry will play the following programme at the Barrack Square, to-morrow, commencing at 7.30 p.m.:—

Polka	"Blue Beard"	Litz.

THE English Derby, the "blue ribbon-of-the turf," and the most coveted prize of the racing world, was established by the Earl of Derby in 1780. Ever since then the Stanleys have maintained a racing stud and it has always been their ambition to win the race bearing their name. But, as yet, they have not done so; and their last nearest approach was some thirty-five years ago, when Toxopholite ran fourth and broke the hearts of many favourite followers.

"Becus he's a bad, wicked laddie," replied his mother. "Weel, ma," returned Sandy, after a moment's thought, "I diana think I'm that awfu' guid mysel' that ye need be sae feart."

A NAVAL YARD constable named Kelly is in trouble and the Admiral is going to have him "on the stand" in a Naval Court-martial owing to the report that a considerable quantity of naval stores were found in his private house yesterday. As this man's house is in the colony it seems strange that he should not be brought up in the Police Court in the usual way—why should the naval authorities take the whip out of the hands of the police? Have the naval authorities carte blanche to arrest private citizens and search their premises, like the Po Leung Kuk detectives? We think not; and if not why should not Kelly's friends apply for a writ of habias corpus, to be served on the commodore on the Victor Emanuel, at once?

GENERAL improvement in the physique of the people, as well as many of the advantages without incurring any of the disadvantages of conscription, would, it is believed, says a home paper, be gained by the adoption of the scheme propounded by Sir Henry Havelock-Allan, which he intends to press forward in the House of Commons should he, as it is hoped, be re-elected. Sir Henry proposes that the youths of all classes should receive some degree of voluntary military teaching in public schools, in Board schools and Voluntary schools, between the ages of ten and fourteen years, and that this training should be continued to the age of nineteen to all who receive technical education at the expense of the State, so as to enable all young men on attaining manhood to be prepared beforehand, not by any sort of compulsion, but by voluntary engagement, to bear arms in the national defence on sudden emergency arising.

THE Maha Chakyhri, a large armed steel yacht, built to the order of the King of Siam, was launched by Messrs. Ramage on the 27th June at Leith. The dimensions are, length 275 feet; breadth, 40 feet; depth 20 feet. The yacht, which is more like an armed cruiser, has a ram projecting several feet from the bow. She will carry 15 guns of various calibre, and will have two powerful search lights. The furnishing is simply gorgeous. Prince Kittyakara, son of the King of Siam, named the yacht.

AT Shanghai last week the new tug boat Sampson, built for the Shanghai Tug Company, was launched from Messrs. Boyd & Co.'s yard, Pootung. Her dimensions are as follows:—Length over all 125 feet; beam 21 feet; moulded depth 12 feet, with a mean draft of 9 feet. She is built of iron, with steel upper works, and is very substantially constructed. She is fitted with compound surface condensing engines, with inverted cyclinders, diameter 18 and 38 inches, and a stroke of 27 inches, and she is expected to give a speed of 11 knots.

THE Paris Anarchists are indeed a queer set. They actually go in bands to eating-houses, give their orders, consume the victuals, and leave without paying the demands of the landlords. And if any objection be raised to supplying the hungry miscreants with food, they threaten to call in the assistance of dynamite, which threat, recalling as it does the fate of poor Very, generally has the desired effect. The motto of the Anarchists—scoundrels we should call them—is, "We take what we want where we find it!" and the name given to the tactics of the vagabonds is L'Estampage. We have in Hongkong an infinitely superior system, involving no violence, threatening, or other unpleasantness. It is known as Le Système du Chit.

THE following resolution was unanimously passed on July 1st, by the Commercial Congress in England:—That, in the opinion of this Congress, the establishment of a uniform penny rate of postage between the mother country and her colonies and dependencies would not only tend to promote trade and freedom of intercourse throughout Her Majesty's dominions, but would in an eminent degree foster and extend the cordial relations which at present exist between the various parts of the Empire. This Congress, therefore, respectfully urges Her Majesty's Government to take steps to secure, as speedily as may be, the establishment of a system of uniform penny postage throughout the whole of the British Empire.

TO-DAY, August 5th, according to an exchange, Mars will arrive at a point directly opposite this earth, which it reaches but once in 15 years, when the distance between the two planets will be reduced from 141,000,000 to 35,000,000 miles. To-night a thousand telescopes will be levelled at the planet, in the southern skies, and a thousand eyes will seek to pierce the veil of distance that conceals the knowledge for which science thirsts. Wonderful results are expected by reason of the marvellous improvements that have been made in astronomical instruments within 15 years, since the last most favourable observation was made. With the powerful lenses and the photographic appliances of to-day it will be as if the fara-way visitor, tempted by curiosity, had drawn nearer to the earth than ever. Although Mars will be 35,000,000 miles away the powerful Lick telescope will magnify her to a size as if viewed at a distance of but 17,500 miles. A little nearer, and Mars would be a favourite with the class of capitalists whose financial career culminates in the "Disappearing Trick." Where is the H. & S. Bank shroff?

THE acrostic which a waggish firm of architects placed upon the new public library building of Boston has now been removed after much indignant discussion. Upon the facade of that structure the names of several great men had been arranged in such a manner that the perpendicular rows of initial letters spelled the firm's title. The tablet has been torn down and another will soon be put in its place. To do away with all offensive suggestions of advertising and at the same time meet the poetic requirements, the following arrangement of illustrious names has been suggested:

B ion.	B ethoven.
A ristides.	E merson.
K eppler.	A ngelo.
E uripides.	N elson.
D ante.	S chopenhauer.

The names are inspiring, and the esoteric message they bear exhales the savory aroma peculiar to Boston life. Glancing at the one, the mind or the passer-by would be stimulated, and taking in the deep significance of the other, the cravings of his physical being would be met and profoundly satisfied.

THE Tacoma Ledger says that Mr. Edwards, the taxidermist, has just received a large octopus, or devil fish, which was captured off Old Town by some fishermen. The creature weighed over sixty pounds and had arms three feet eight inches in length. On each of its eight tentacles or arms there were 320 suckers, making a grand total of 2,560. The octopus had attached itself to a fish caught by a trawl and was drawn up with it. The same firm has also received a young albino deer, a buck, shot on Wiedby Island. It has two-pronged horns and is supposed to be about two years old. The natural color for a fawn is brown, with white spots, but the color of this one is white with brown spots. A similar doe was shot on the island some time ago, so that it is thought there must be albino blood in the deer on the island. The deer skins are comparatively easy to preserve, but no better means of preserving the devil fish has been found as yet than keeping them in alcohol. This is on account of their having no bones and because of their shrinking and shrivelling, as most forms of deep water marine life do.

THE operaters and brokers on the Madrid Bourse refused to do any business on July 1st. No dealing of any kind was officially recorded, in order to mark disapproval of the new tax upon all cash and speculative operations imposed by the Budget Law of 1892-93, and promulgated in the Gazette. Financial circles are equally displeased with the clause in the Budget, which imposes a tax of 1 per cent. on the coupons of all National Debts and provincial and Municipal loans, except on the coupons payable in foreign countries upon the Exterior debts.

THE Northern Pacific Co.'s 4000-tonner Victoria, due here about a fortnight hence under command of Captain W. Panton, will have amongst her passengers Captain A. Marshall, who was the distinguished commander of the tea-clipper Stirling Castle and now is the nautical organizer of the Hongkong-Tacoma line and special representative in the Far East of the owners of the renowned Guion Line of trans-Atlantic steamers. It is rumoured that Captain Marshall will become a temporary resident of Hongkong in the capacity of Marine Superintendent of the Northern Pacific Steamship Company.

GRENIER, who sold the plans of the Toulon defences to foreign Governments, readily acknowledged the extent to which he had betrayed the interests of France to Germany and Italy, practically laying bare to those two countries the secrets which France has most zealously guarded. The improvement of the Toulon defences will probably be changed and alterations will be made at other points, so as to make Grenier's revelations of as little value as possible to the triple alliance. Captain Borup, an American officer, admits that Grenier gave him certain documents. His response to Mr. Coolidge's demand for an explanation is an emphatic protest against the charge that he communicated anything to Germany or Italy. Mr. Coolidge has communicated Captain Borup's protest to M. Ribot, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

THE following is the finding of the Marine Court of Inquiry into the loss of the Milton, held at Penang on July 26th:—"The Court finds the loss of the steamship Milton attributable primarily to bad stowage of the dead weight portion of her cargo, which should have been more evenly distributed. This was done by the orders of the Chinchew (Chinese supercargo) who then left the ship on the plea of sickness the day before she sailed. The master of the vessel seems to have arranged the rest of the cargo so as to counteract, in his opinion, the effect of the deadweight forward, but though his arrangement was altered to some extent by the Boarding officer's orders to lighten the vessel sufficiently to clear her Plimsoll mark, this would not have affected the result. With cargo stowed in such an unsafe way, and considering the history and condition of the ship, it was natural she should founder on meeting prolonged rough weather. The Master's certificate is returned to him." And still there is nothing done to modify the dangerous and scandalous despotism of chinchews in the Straits!

A CURIOUS case occurred in British Kowloon this week, illustrating a very serious source of constant trouble along the border-line between British and Chinese territory. A junk-owner reported to Inspector Hanson at Yaumati a few days ago that his junk, lying moored at Tai-kok-tsui, had been boarded during the night by thieves, who stole four large new fishing nets, worth $50. Alongside his boat lay a hulk, fitted up for weddings and similar shows, and during the night of the theft a Chinese watchman was on board the wedding junk, but nobody on the other. This watchman soon afterwards told the owners of the junk that they could get their nets back, through him, for $40. After a little bigging, $37 were borrowed from friends and paid to the watchman, who went over the border into China, and got the nets promptly from an ex-convict, deported from Hongkong and living at the Chinese village of Sam-sui-po. There is a very strong suspicion that the watchman knew a good deal about the theft, and if Celestial manners and customs are still what they always have been, some of the $37 must have gone into the watchman's pocket. He is not, it seems, regularly engaged or paid by anybody, but seems to hold an indefinite sort of rambling commission from the elders of the village, and when he wants any pay he makes an arbitrary demand from the leading inhabitants. This arrangement ought at any rate to be stopped. The watchman has been arrested under a clause in the penal code making it a punishable offence to receive money on account of stolen property without using every possible means to secure the arrest of the thief; but it is a difficult case to decide. The ex-convict cannot be arrested, we believe, for the offence, as he is a Chinese subject, living in China, and the offence was committed within British jurisdiction.

SUPREME COURT.

IN CRIMINAL SESSIONS.

(Before Mr. Fielding Clarke, Chief Justice, and a Special Jury.)

August 5th.

THE HAPPY VALLEY MURDER.

THE DEFENCE.

The trial of Emin Deen, receiver at Victoria Gaol, for the murder of Ram Samy, an Indian watchman, was continued to-day.

At the commencement of the proceedings to-day his lordship called the Attorney-General's attention to the fact that there was nothing on record to show that the body referred to by Dr. Marques in his evidence was that of Ram Samy, the murdered watchman.

The Attorney-General thanked his lordship for reminding him of the fact prior to the commencement of the defence and called Acting Inspector Baker to do the needful.

Mr. J. J. Francis, Q.C. then opened the case for the defence in a twelve-column oration. Not having space for such a lengthy address we confine ourselves to a few points in the speech. Happily, said the learned counsel, this Court was not often called upon to deal with murder cases, involving grave responsibility on the part of the jury and the prisoner's counsel, and it was generally admitted that by far the most serious responsibility rested with the counsel for the defence, for upon his conduct of the case depended, in great measure, the issue of the case. He would not adopt the course of some counsel and at once put the case to the jury, as he could do, without calling any witness for the defence, because it would be a most serious responsibility for counsel to lose the case when he had purposely refrained from calling witnesses in the belief that the case for the prosecution was so imperfect and weak that no jury of sensible men could possibly convict the prisoner at the bar. People, in such cases, often said "If he had called this witness and that, the issue would have been different." He would, therefore, not deprive his client of one single chance of escape. The case was undoubtedly one of cowardly and brutal murder, with no circumstances that could be used to reduce the charge to one of manslaughter. He then went on to review the evidence and stated that there was not one tittle of evidence to show that Ram Samy was murdered on the spot where the body was found except in the evidence of the man Seetha Ram. Had the prosecution been able to produce evidence of a scuffle in that particular spot, or blood about the place, or of a dagger picked up near it was justifiable to presume that they would have done so. Then, referring to the way in which the case had been worked up by the police, the learned Counsel pointed out that the police blinded themselves in the belief that it must have been Emin Deen who did the murder. They jumped to that conclusion at once, acted on it and did all in their power to bring it home to the prisoner. Seetha Ram's and Duan Alli's effects had never been searched in the hope of finding evidence of guilt, and even the Chief of Police (General Gordon) himself had at once questioned the prisoner about the murder, showing a deep-rooted suspicion. He submitted, too, that when the times given in evidence and distances were taken into account it would be found that it was impossible that Emin Deen could have committed the murder. Gaol employés named Nolan and Straube would be put in the box to prove that prior to 8 p.m. on the 19th June prisoner was playing cards in the gaol. Mr. Wotoon, too, would be put into the witness-box to confute the allegations of the witness W. Schmidt, who spoke of Emin Deen and Mr. Wotton beseeching him to make a false statement as to the time prisoner went out on the night in question. It was not until some days after giving his evidence privately to Mr. Wotton that Schmidt went back on his statement and altered the time to 8.30 p.m. As to the seduction of the deceased's wife by the prisoner, that could not be held up as a motive for prisoner doing away with Ram Samy, for he was living quietly with the woman in Cochrane Street and was never molested by the deceased or his friends. The learned counsel could not recall a case of the seducer doing away with the husband of his paramour, it was generally the wife that was killed by her husband. When the police made up their minds to prove a case it was not difficult for them to effect their purpose here, by working up evidence amongst Chinese and gun lascars, as had been done in this instance.

Nolan and Straube, gaol employés, spoke to seeing Emin Deen playing cards between 7 and 8 p.m. on the 19th June.

Sheikh Abdool, a fireman employed at the Lee Yuen Refinery, spoke to seeing Seetha Ram come to the works at 6 o'clock on the morning of the 20th June and report the murder of Ram Samy.

Buddoob, another fireman, said he heard all about the murder on the 20th, at the refinery. Seetha Ram reported it at the gate at 6 a.m. Seetha Ram said he saw the body near the Cremation Ground in Happy Valley, and he also said it might have been Emin Deen who killed him because he had a grudge against the deceased.

William Wotton, solicitor instructing counsel for the defence, said he was first instructed in behalf of Emin Deen on the Tuesday following the murder. On the 24th June he went to the gaol and saw Emin Deen. Schmidt told him that it was 8.0r 8.15 or 8.30 when Emin Deen went out. He did not coax Schmidt to say 8.15 or 8.30 p.m. He wasn't sure of the position of the prisoner when Schmidt was giving this information in the Gaol. He might have been in the usual Indian form, crouching, but there was nothing cringing about his manner. Later on Schmidt said, in witness' office, that Emin Deen went out at 6.30 on the 19th.

Cross-examined—He did not bully Schimdt. He pressed him, but did not bully him. There was a great difference between coaxing and bullying. He wouldn't be sure about Emin Deen thanking Schmidt for stating the time was 8.30 p.m. He didn't notice it, at any rate.

That ended the case for the defence. Mr. Francis then proceeded to address the jury.

The Attorney General replied.

His Lordship summed up.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

Prisoner was discharged.

Owing to the late hour at which the case was finished (6.5 p.m.) we hold over the full report until to-morrow.

THE "PAKSHAN" MISSING.

We regret to hear that no news of the missing steamer Pakshan has yet been received by the local agents of her registered owners—Messrs. Bradley & Co. of Swatow. The agents think it highly probable that she has foundered in a typhoon. She is now more than a fortnight overdue from Saigon to Singapore.

THE "HAIPHONG."

THE Kumamoto Maru arrived at Yokohama on the 22nd ult. and reported rough, stormy weather. Large quantities of wreckage, probably from the Haiphong, were passed, and it is thought the wreck has gone to pieces. Previous to this it was stated that the Haiphong was not so seriously damaged as at first reported; in particular, that she had not broken up aft. After removing the cargo the Japanese engaged in the work of salving fell out among themselves, and work on the vessel was practically stopped.

MORE ABOUT THE TYPHOON.

A correspondent sends us the following notes, which seem to be from a scientific point of view the best yet received:—

The typhoon reported south-east of Hongkong on the 20th ulto., and recurving northwards, passed over the south end of Formosa apparently in an easterly direction. In Taiwanfoo the wind blew first from the south, finishing up from the north. All day on the 21st the wind blew strong from the south, until about 10 p.m., when, after an interval of calm, it suddenly sprang up from the north. At Anping the water rose seven feet and flooded the basements at nearly all the houses, washed away the Bund, blew down several of the large trees on Fort Zelandia, and wrecked eleven large trading junks, several of which were blown over the bar out to sea, three wrecked on the bar, and one blown a couple of miles inland, where she lies high and dry now. The European houses stood fairly well, but the natives suffered terribly, their houses being flooded, razed to the ground, and swept away, overwhelming the inmates. Takow seems to have been in the centre of the track, and to have suffered more than Anping, but as the telegraph was broken down and the country flooded communication is difficult. H.M.S. Firebrand was lying there at the time, moored in the harbour and through good handling escaped without great damage. At the Pescadores the typhoon was hardly felt, but the crops all about Taiwanfoo have been destroyed and the natives have lost heavily.

THE EARTHQUAKE AT HOIHOW.

July 28th, 1892.

This morning at a few minutes past three all the inhabitants of Hoihow were greatly alarmed by a heavy earthquake-shock that shook the whole place, houses being seen and felt to stagger and shake in a most terrifying manner. The earthquake was accompanied by a subterranean roar far louder than thunder, that rolled away from the Northward to the Southward like a huge breaker that could be heard from a long distance. It is said by the natives that Hoihow has not been visited with a similar shock for a century: even a slight one is a most unusual occurrence. We have had exceptionally wet weather of late and attribute it to the divers typhoons that have been dunning the coast of South China.

GAMBLING.

AN EXAMPLE FOR HONGKONG.

It has been shown, to the complete satisfaction of the police authorities and all who know anything of the subject, that the most stringent gambling laws are unable to suppress the evil in Hongkong, and that the most they can do, as proved by the results of last year's Ordinance, is to compel the gamblers to conceal their operations. The only reason put forward by the Government for continuing in this course of self-stultifying is that ancient washerwoman's twaddle about "principles of English law." Truth puts on record a case which might be at any rate tested here:—

Among our numerous associations, of moral busy-bodies there is, I believe, a Society for the Suppression of Gambling. I would respectfully point out, therefore, the rich harvest which awaits this Society's reapers in the island of Malta, where, under the ægis of Britain, and the direct supervision of the local police, public lotteries are a recognised and flourishing institution. The tickets for these gambles are sold in enormous numbers at 1s. 1d. each, the odd penny being the agent's commission. The modus operandi is as follows: Each ticket bears a series of fifteen numbers on its face. At the appointed time and place the holders assemble. Numbers are drawn from a revolving cylinder, called out, and marked up on a black-board, and each ticket-holder marks off the corresponding number (if he happens to have it) on his ticket. The individual who first gets all the numbers on his ticket drawn in this way is the winner of the prize, which is usually, I believe, £50.

The whole business, as I have said, is under the supervision of the police. The lottery tickets (I have one before me) all bear the official police stamp on their backs. A police officer is present on the platform at the drawing. The prizes are distributed at the police station. I do not feel my own righteous indignation stirred very deeply by these lamentable proceedings. I see that the whole proceeds are devoted to specified public charities, and charity has covered so many big sins before now, that I should think it might be allowed to cover the thirteen-penny peccadilloes of the punters at the Maltese tombola. The amusement, too, is one of the customs of the country, and to countenance it is therefore justifiable on Home Rule principles. What chiefly strikes me about the matter is, that we should be such pernicious humbugs as to turn up our eyes at the iniquities of Monte Carlo, while we are fostering and protecting public gambling in our own dominions a few miles off.

Here is Governor Robinson's $40,000 endowment for the Medical College.

LATE TELEGRAMS.

LONDON, July 19th.

The death is announced of Mr. Thos. Cook, founder of Thos. Cook and Sons' Tourist Agency.

SIMLA, July 19th.

It is believed that the Indian Currency memorial will have been signed by ten thousand persons at the end of the month.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 19th.

In consequence of riots that have taken place at Astrakan, Saratoff and Dhavinsk, in which a frenzied mob sacked the cholera hospitals and murdered the doctors, a proclamation has been issued stating that henceforth the rioters will be tried by courtmartial. The plague has appeared at Khorassan.

The latest reports of the Russian grain crops state that the prospects are improving.

SOFIA, July 20th.

The trial of M. Karaveloff, formerly Prime Minister and Regent of Bulgaria, Dr. Moloff, ex-Cabinet Minister, and sixteen other persons, for complicity in the murder of M. Beltchoff, and with having laid a plot to murder Prince Ferdinand and M. Stambouloff was concluded to-day and resulted in four of the prisoners being sentenced to death, six being acquitted, and eight, including M. Karaveloff, being sentenced to various terms of imprisonment.

ALLAHABAD, July 20th.

The headmen of the various Black Mountain tribes have expressed a desire to enter into communication with the British authorities with a view to settling all questions connected with Hashim Ali, the late chief of the Hassanzais.

SIMLA, July 20th.

The Amir has replied to the Government of India's recent intimation that if his troops occasioned further trouble in Bajour the Government would insist on their withdrawal from Asmai. Abdul Rahman says his troops were perfectly quiet and lays all the blame upon Umra Khan.

News from the Hazara country states that the Hazaras have twice inflicted heavy defeat upon the Amir's troops. The latter are reported on each occasion to have fallen into an ambush losing several hundred men and in the second instance a very large number of rifles and ammunition. This occurred at the beginning of the present month and heavy fighting has probably since taken place.

ALLAHABD, July 21st.

The Amir of Kabul has replied to the second letter sent by the Government respecting Bajour. He again says he will not attack the country unless provoked, but throws the blame of the recent collision on Umra Khan. He seems in a better mind to discuss reasonably a settlement of the frontier about Asmar in the negotiation with the Government of India. The continued presence of Afghan troops at Asmar may provoke fresh fighting, though Umra Khan has been warned by the Government of India not to force a collision.

It is important that a distinct agreement should be come to by negotiation with the Amir as to the exact limit of his authority in the Kunar Valley.

LONDON, July 21st.

There are reasons to believe that the riots at Astrakan, Saratoff and elsewhere in Russia were instigated by political agitators.

A meeting of the creditors of the Oriental Bank was held yesterday, at which the liquidator stated that the creditors' claims are likely to amount to four and a half million sterling. The assets consist of one and a half million cash, which comes in four to six months; one million and a half which will take time to realise; and of Bank Premises, the realisation of which is doubtful. The creditors, he said, would receive at the utmost fifteen shillings in the pound.

THE ELECTIONS

LONOND, July 20th.

The following candidates have been elected:—

Conservatives:—Captain W. Sidebotham, High Peak, Derbyshire.

Unionists:—Sir Sir H M. Thompson, Handsworth, Staffordshire. Major L. Darwin, Lichfield, Staffordshire.

Liberals:—John Wilson, Mid-Durham, J. T. Brunner, Northwich, Cheshire.

Parnellites:—J. Gilhooley, West Cork. F. Driscoll, South Monaghan. T. Sexton, Kerry.

July 21st.

Mr. J. Mandeville, Anti-Parnellite, has been elected for South Tipperary. Only the returns for Orkney now remain to be received.

A meeting of upwards of one hundred Indians, resident in London, was held last night at the National Liberal Club, Narayan Sing presiding. A resolution was unanimously passed expressing heartfelt pleasure at the election of Dadabhai Naoroji, who commands the confidence of all classes in India and whose election is a proof England's confidence in her fellow-subjects.

Correction of returns.—Instead of Thos. Fielden, returned for Middleton, substitute General R. J. Fielden, Conservative, returned unopposed for Chorley, North Lancashire.

The Daily News says that Home Rule remains the first imperative engagement of the Liberals, but it is possible that it may be necessary to combine urgent Liberal measures therewith.

Mr Labouchere in an article in Truth demands that the new Government shall pass bills dealing with the following subjects before touching Home Rule, namely:—One man one vote, reform of registration, paying of members, local option, and the constitution of parish councils. When these are passed, he says, the Home Rule bill can be carried easily.

THE CHINA TEA TRADE.

Following the information we published last week of two rich natives embarking in the tea trade, tempted by hearing of others retiring from it on their profits, we learn this week that they have been greatly disappointed, growers being unwilling to pick at the very low price offering, the said price, they say, not being enough to pay for the labourers' food in picking, let alone other items of expense which fall on them. It would appear from this that the growers having been caught with their picked first crop and, no doubt, to a great extent with their second crop teas, decline to go on picking unless an advanced selling price is first agreed upon. They would, they say, be spending their time more profitably by working in the rice fields. It was understood that the teamen intended this season to combine together against the growers to bargain at the lowest possible figure, the ostensible reason being to place foreign buyers in a position to compete with India and Ceylon, and so save the trade. They succeeded. The growers with all their tea ready picked and ready for sale had to give in with such a formidable combination against them; and it is said the tea changed hands at unheard of low prices. The broad reason given for the combination however, seems to have been forgotten. If foreigners have bought at 10 to 15 per cent lower tael price than last year it is still doubtful whether the teas are laid down low enough to compete appreciably with the cheap costing Indian and Ceylon produce; while if the teamen had given up half of their profit, say another 10 per cent (out of the 20 per cent made by them) the comparison with our rivals' laying-down costs would have very favourable, and at such cost the demand for Foochow Congou would have sprung up again. Now it would appear that we shall have to pass through another season before we shall be able to show our power of being able to lay our teas down at prices really low enough to compete with our rivals. We scarcely believe in the threat of the growers giving up picking altogether. They had become so accustomed to getting their own prices through a long series of years, while the competition amongst buyers lasted, that they feel aggrieved now a change has come about, and are apparently making a stand. Time will show whether they mean to abide by it. The news sounds something like a crisis up country, but it is the first we have heard of it, and we need be under no apprehension of insufficient supplies so long as the daily arrivals to this market continue on their present scale.—Echo.

TORNADO IN DELI.

(Special for the "Pinang Gazette.")

According to the Deli Courant of Saturday last, the 23rd July, a severe tornado burst over Sungei Krian Kiri in Deli, which did a lot of damage. The stables and outhouses attached to the manager's house were simply lifted up and their débris scattered about. All the furniture in the house was damaged; and a heavy table, with a marble top, was blown out of the verandah and was afterwards found broken into a dozen pieces. An assistant's house was partially destroyed, and the Javanese and Chinese coolie sheds entirely so. The drying sheds, which were stored with tobacco, were all destroyed and the tobacco carried away by the wind. Zinc plates were seen flying through the air like sheets of paper. Further, the tobacco still in the fields was ruined by hail-stones, and the whole estate is one picture of ruin. So strong was the wind, that two Europeans were lifted off their legs and blown a considerable distance.

CHIPS FROM WESTERN CHINA.

III.

From Sa-wan to Luipo we passed through a desolate country over an execrable road. Standing among the neglected graves were the ruins of former flourishing market-towns, now occupied by a few stragglers. Some years ago the Mântz (or "wild men") came down in wrath and all but obliterated the Chinese and their homes in this country-side. Like Ishmaelites the hand of these hill-men is against every man, and every man's hand (and tongue too) is against them. Secluded, often inaccessible, they maintain their independence in their own realm and though they come down to trade with the Chinese, they are ever in a condition of armed neutrality, like the proverbial wise man prepared for whatever may turn up.

Their reputation among the Chinese is alarming to anyone who has no other means of judging than the coloured reports of the credulous, frightened Chinese.

"They have no doctrine" is one great charge against them, the head and front of their offending indeed, in the eyes of these ultra-polished "study-book-men," who in the seclusion of little Luipo are as proud of their claw-fingernails and tattered edition of the classics, as they would be were they privileged to air their forms and finery on the Ta-ma-loo. "No doctrine" indeed! That is, they don't understand the complex art of politeness as practised in China; they are unable to repeat long strings of phrases with obscure meanings, cloudy even to the truest mind; they lack the temple and the idol, shaven priest and chanting monk, which the "superior man" professes to disdain and yet employs on every suitable occasion. "No doctrine!" A condition "devoutly to be wished" for the Chinese themselves, if it would help to free them from the degrading superstition with which they are burdened now. Rain is wanted in a certain city and district. The magistrate will not allow the people to have a "dragon boat" as they have been wont, because he says it is no good, if the water rises in the river the dragon can't stop it. But now because the fields are dry and the people grumbling there are theatricals and daily chanting in the temple, the old man standing among the priests calling to them to "shout louder," "make more noise" etc., and yesterday, to crown the whole, he had a venerable tiger's head carried from the Yamên and with great ado escorted to a pool some distance from here, where the local dragon is said to reside, and there with great ceremony the tiger's head was pitched into the water in the hope that tiger and dragon would fight and thus bring the rain, when the magic head would be fished out, brought back to the Yamên, and laid up for future use. With such wiles do the officials "buy a reputation" and calm this intelligent nation. This is the "doctrine" which the Mantz lack!

One evening, while a guest in the Yamên, I had an opportunity to see some of these "wild men" at close quarters. Tall, swarthy, intelligent, one felt more than ordinary sympathy for them as they stood there, their powerful forms silhouetted against the darkness outside. They are Foreigners to the Chinese, as we are; bracketed with us under one name and character, there was the touch of a fellow feeling. After he had heard their story the "great man" sat a long while telling me what he knew of these mountain children—the Mantz of Western Szechuen. Opium is not used by them was the first point noted, but they are terrible drunkards. "We Chinese take wine in a cup, but the Mantz take it from a bowl"—a fact we had means of verifying at a subsequent date.

They have no idols apparently in the sense known to the Chinese, and instead of burying their dead they practise cremation. Two more points of special interest. In the disposal of their dead, the bodies are placed in a sitting posture and then bound round with cords, after which a funeral pyre is built and the body burned, the ashes and unburnt wood being subsequently buried at the spot.

When the head of a family departs, his body is cremated like the rest of his folk, but some fragment of unburnt wood is preserved from the pile, a smooth surface is produced on which a rude likeness of a man is drawn and this is put up in the home to be the object of worship, forming the nucleus around which gathers the devotion of the family,—a limited ancestor worship.

When a chief dies there are gatherings of the tribes for many days, feasting, horse racing, and such other practices as we are accustomed to associate with the red men of the American plains.

The one great cause of terror to the Chinese, who are always eager to push the area of their occupation farther west into the recognised territory of the Mantz, is the proclivity of the mountain men to brigandage. At certain seasons of the year a limited number of Chinese are allowed to go within the boundaries for trading purposes, but beyond this, the Mantz distinctly discourage all intercourse. One method of emphasising their dislike is to carry off stragglers who may happen to be about, or to kidnap small parties on the road. The persons so captured are held for ransom and should they not be redeemed may be either killed or doomed to slavery.

One day when a certain Magistrate, who has the charge of a large district bordering the Mantz country, went down to examine the prisoners who are kept in the prison attached to his Yamên, among the forty odd "wild men" who crouched before him he found one man escorted by two old women, who clung to the fellow's clothes, one on either side, crying in a piteous manner, and between the sobs they told their tale of wrong. The Magistrate commanded silence for a minute and asked what was the charge against the prisoner at the bar, "He stole my child the year before last" answered the younger of the two women, and then commenced a long and amusing cross-examination, not by the Magistrate or even by his clerk; but anyone among the crowd of the "great unwashed" which stood around, asked whatever question might occur to him, till one was perfectly bewildered by the Babel of sounds. But not so the Magistrate; he took advantage of this interlude to solace himself with a few whiffs from his water-pipe which an attendant deftly filled and handed to him. When the fire of questions slackened, the two women fell upon the unfortunate prisoner and beat him with their fists, butted at him with their heads, goat-fashion, scratched him and behaved like infuriated hags generally, all the while calling out to the tortured man to restore the child he had stolen. All this time the excitement had been rising among the spectators; they laughed, shouted encouragement to the old women, or directed them how to make their onset more effective, till the scene more resembled a fighting ring than a court of justice; but when the official shouted "Why don't you bite him like dogs?" the uproar reached its climax. Those old hags took hold of the man's arms and bit them, working their way up to his shoulders and back, which they "chawed" till he roared with agony, much to the delight of the sight-seers. When this had gone on for a time the Magistrate called on them to stop and ordered the women to come up and tell their story plainly. All this torture and "fool pidgin" had been undertaken on general principles I suppose, but the look of those crouching men during the carnival was pathetic in the extreme. Their large, lustrous eyes were dilated with terror as one may often see in an animal standing at bay, they crouched low and hugged the ground, as if they would hide themselves from the uncertain future, for who could tell what might come to them next?

Well, the old women came forward with many genuflections and protests of unworthiness and knelt before the great man. "What's your name?" he asked of the more prominent one. "Liu" was the answer. "Well, old woman, Liu, what have you to say?" and again the old woman galloped through her story of the kidnapping of her son, "What evidence have you that this was the man who did it?" and then followed a series of statements and inconsequent conclusions, till even the Mandarin was aroused. "Why—old Mrs. Liu, your statements don't agree" said he, and after a rather severe and confusing examination by the crowd, who were now much interested, the judgment of the Court was oracularly delivered as follows—"Old Mrs. Liu, I believe you have been telling me a ——— much head-knocking and protest on part of old Mrs. Liu—"Now, see, I'll give you ten days to get your evidence and if it is not forthcoming then, I'll discharge the prisoner. Do you hear?" Protesting that she was both true and unworthy, this degraded specimen of the sex feminine took her slow departure from the august presence of the law. One could but blush at the exhibition of savagery, as much for those who enjoyed the spectacle as for those who were the actors. How about the "dignity of the race" "sublime humanity" and so forth in the face of such an outbreak? The latent possibilities of human nature are of uncertain complexion, and those who would exalt devotion to humanity in the aggregate into a religion, have some stupendous difficulties to face and problems to unravel. The query still recurs, which of the two parties were the "wild men?"—Mercury.

NEWCHWANG.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

July 25th.

We have had too much water during the last week—not particularly on account of heavy rains, although these may have had more or less effect on the over-flooding of the river, which, its banks having broken in some important places, seems to have unusually expanded its limits. At present we do not hear that the coming crops have suffered, but this must be the result to some extent, in most of the lower districts, where millet and peas would be swamped, before they were strong enough to resist the inundation.

The temperature seems to be higher than has been the case for the last few years, and we hear of some cases of sunstroke, without any suspicion of alcoholism. Although the thermometer has been known to rise to 90° Fahr., as a rule there are light breezes to fan the heated brow, and punkahs are more honoured in the breach than in the observance. A sport is taking place in exports, as natives anticipate good rates for the produce which has been shipped lately. This should have a favourable effect on the rates of freight, which are pretty low now both inwards and outwards. The supply of tonnage generally is, however, much in excess of the demand, and the cutting down system by the three "Lewiathans" is more likely to upset what are called "outsiders" than if a regular high tariff existed, for when the companies were friendly any one could secure business by deviating a little from the settled rates, whereas now it is a case of doing the carrying trade for next to nothing. Yet in some instances it pays; I suppose on account of the large business that is done. Anyhow, when too late, the fact will be realised that it is easier to lose a million than to make it. A penny saved is a penny earned. A million thrown away can never be retrieved. It is a pity that some people, and those not the oldest in the trade of China, do not see that it is impossible for one shipping company—even if all the tonnage now in the east were amalgamated under one flag—to retain the monopoly of the carrying trade, unless all the shippers be shareholders in such company, and all the different nationalities be merged in one cosmopolitan Power. What a splendid agency that would be? Why don't some one get up such a Universal Freight Import, Export and Everything in the way of Profit Company, unlimited of course?—N. C. Daily News

HANGCHOW.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

July 25th.

In several of your recent issues there have been references to the steam launch company running vessels between your city and this one. It seems that there are two companies, one of which claims the title "official" and seems to have the sanction of the governor. It has eight launches and conducts a fairly regular and reliable service. A launch, drawing two or three Chinese house boats, leaves this city every day at about 7 p.m. and makes the trip to Shanghai in about twenty-four hours. A similar fleet leaves Shanghai early every morning I think, and reaches here the following morning. This company also carries the mails and parcels. The other company has launches fewer in number and rather inferior in quality, and does not keep such regular hours. For this reason it is designated by its rival company as "the wild chicken" or "pheasant." Both companies seem to be doing a good business. They certainly are a boon to the inhabitants of an interior city, who formerly had to depend on human muscles for the transfer of mails, packages and passengers, to and from our maritime metropolis. Formerly letters, posted late in the afternoon, reached us in the morning of the fourth day or in seventy-two hours or more. Packages were five days on the way, and passenger boats anywhere between four and seven days. The native foot-boats have been stimulated to make faster time, and they really deliver letters and small packages in the same time as the launches. There is quite a rivalry between the two companies or rather the two methods—foot boats and steam launches, steam power and human muscle. Which will win in the long run?

Another matter has been the subject of much talk in this city for some months; that is the suppression of the printing and sale of Manilla lottery tickets. It has now become an accomplished fact. There were a great many shops engaged in the business of issuing "small" tickets in this city. The plan was to buy tickets from the offices in Shanghai, at 6 or 7 dollars each, and then print and issue a number of small tickets, with numbers corresponding to the bond fide tickets, issued at the head offices. These small tickets were sold at 7, 8 and 10 cents each and entitled the holder to a proportionate interest in the real ticket on whose basis it was issued. It made gambling in this form much more easy for persons of small means and it also gave great opportunities for cheating. It is said that the officials decided to suppress the traffic some time last year, but they moved slowly in the matter. Finally they came down on a certain individual, confiscated his goods and sent him off in exile. Now a proclamation is posted about the streets rehearsing the matter in rhyme, and calling on the people to take warning and obey the injunctions of the magistrates who are "father and mother to the people."—N. C. Daily News.

TIENTSIN.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

July 23rd.

The river has fallen a little, but scarcely enough to relieve our anxiety should there come another heavy rainfall in the mountains. For all the country to the west of us is flooded for a distance of 50 or 60 miles, and not a little of that to the east of the Peiho as well. The debris passing down gives some indication of the destruction occasioned by this inundation. There has been considerable loss of life also. The current is so strong, and the silt is depositing so rapidly, and changing the channel in many places, that navigation is very difficult. Probably no more steamers will come up to the settlement till the flood is past, but instead discharge at Tongku. This much increases the inconvenience of getting to and from this place. It is about impossible for the steamers to stem the current, which catches them by the nose in rounding a bend and in spite of all they can do, helped by a tugboat in one instance, drives them into the opposite bank at great risk of serious damage. Only a day or two ago, the tugboat Gem, towing lighters, struck a newly made or enlarged tongue in rounding a bend, when the current caught her sidewise and upset her instantly. She sank at once. Four men were drowned, and another injured and barely saved. The weather is close and threatening—N. C. Daily News.
